The Leadership Summit for Sustainable Business

Event Summary:

The 2016 expo is focused on cleantech, which is one of the world's fastest growing markets and is Canada's fastest-growing industry.

The market for these technologies is set to expand as governments and industry around the world seek solutions for the problems associated with climate change, energy security, and rising oil prices.

In Canada, the new federal government has committed to phasing out fossil fuel subsidies and to investing hundreds of millions of dollars in developing clean technologies. Mandate letters for the new Liberal finance minister and natural resources minister directed them to work "to make Canada the world's most competitive tax jurisdiction for investments in research, development and manufacturing of clean technology."

Reasons to Attend:

- Meet the people behind the cleantech solutions.
- Kick the tires on the Next Big Thing.
- Gain market intelligence and learn more about evolving and mature clean tech markets, potential investment and joint funding opportunities as well as pending regulations, industry trends and best practices with respect to innovation, efficiency and productivity
- Find a cutting-edge solution to an entrenched or emerging challenge.
- Discover the very latest in clean technologies and advanced environmental products and services.
- Explore investment and joint funding opportunities with a diverse range of organizations, including angel and venture capitalists, economic development agencies, and funding organizations.
